

Family Service League Celebrates Nearly 1,000 Graduates Across Long Island

Graduates from Family Service League's model Universal Pre-K and preschool programs.

From Mineola to Mattituck, Family Service League provides critically important education at no fee for nearly 1,000 children from 18 months to four years of age, as well as for adults who are in need of vocational services, which will enable them to join Long Island's workforce.

Most of the children enrolled in FSL's educational programs come from low-income families, many in which Spanish is the primary language. Without the important knowledge of letters, numbers, shapes, colors, language, and social skills, the children would be at a distinct disadvantage when entering kindergarten.

The adults served by FSL's vocational programs learn the skills they need to overcome obstacles and to achieve success in the workplace. "We are extremely proud to have nearly 1,000 children and adults graduate from Family Service League's model preschool and vocational programs," said Rick Van Dyke, FSL president and CEO. "These critical programs enable Long Island children and adults to get a jump start on their education and their lives whatever their age."

Transitions

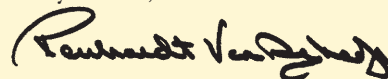

The challenges confronting Long Island's families this year are greater than ever. The downward economic spiral has rendered havoc on once-stable family life. Parents arrive at our doorstep asking for emergency food because their food allowance was spent on gasoline. Dads come to ask for clothing for their children and for help to pay for fuel oil. Mom comes because her husband is very depressed and may lose his job. The spiral this year has widened vastly, with thousands more in need. The good news is that Family Service League has developed a safety network of 51 services to help cure or ameliorate these problems; and along with our cadre of dedicated professional staff and volunteers, we are working tirelessly to improve the quality of life for all Long Islanders.

Thanks to the generosity of our donors - individuals, foundations, and businesses, as well as government funding - FSL is able to work with one family at a time, develop a comprehensive care plan, and then provide intervention services as necessary. And while we are helping relieve the burdens, we also are teaching family members how to better cope for themselves, thus fostering independence. We expect to touch the lives of nearly 48,000 of our neighbors this year, and we could not accomplish this tremendous feat without our strong and capable board members, our dedicated professional staff, our government leaders, and all our other friends of FSL.

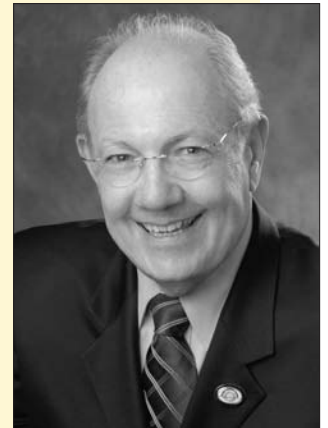

I am extremely proud of Family Service League's accomplishments since I took the helm in 1986. Early next year, I will retire as president and CEO to write the next chapter of my life. Karen Boorshtein, FSL's executive vice president and COO, will assume this position as of February 1, 2009. Having worked with Karen for the past 15 years, I have every confidence that there will be a seamless transition in leadership and that she will do an extraordinary job.

As I move on, I always will remember the wonderful friendships and relationships I have made during my 23 years of service to Long Island families. To our incredible staff, board members, volunteers, and supporters, I know I could not have accomplished this much without your inspiration and support.

Many thanks,

Reinhardt Van Dyke, LMSW
President and CEO

FROM THE
PRESIDENT AND CEO

Richard E. Gavin, Grassi & Co. Partner, Chairs FSL's Board of Directors

Grassi & Co. Partner Richard E. Gavin has been selected to chair Family Service League's Board of Directors. Rick has replaced Lynn Kaufman, who has chaired the Board from 2005 to 2008. "Family Service League has thrived under Lynn Kaufman's skilled leadership of our Board of Directors," stated FSL President and CEO Rick Van Dyke. "We look forward to enjoying the same exemplary leadership as Richard Gavin takes over as chairman of FSL's Board."

Rick manages the finance department at Grassi & Co in New Hyde Park. He also serves as chairman of the company's construction accounting committee. Rick has more than 25 years of experience in operational reviews, business forecasting and projecting, business valuations, human resource advisory services, overhead analysis, internal control evaluations, and strategic tax planning.

A resident of St. James, Rick is active civically and charitably in his community. He is an adjunct professor at Columbia University, teaching a graduate level course in finance and accounting for construction contractors, and has published many articles on family business succession planning, best practices, and joint ventures. Rick also serves on numerous industry and trade organization boards. He has a bachelor of business administration degree from Hofstra University.

"Family Service League works tirelessly to improve the quality of life for thousands of men, women, and children on Long Island," said Rick. "I am truly honored to serve as chair of this organization's great Board of Directors."

Dynamic New Members Join FSL's Board of Directors

Family Service League is pleased to welcome three new dynamic members of the Long Island community to its Board of Directors. They are: Sharon Cass, owner, Sharon Cass Interiors; Wayne Grossé, chief operating officer, Bethpage Federal Credit Union; and Debra Lund, director of Strategy & Development, Newsday.

SHARON CASS

Sharon grew up in Hendersonville, North Carolina and received a bachelor's degree from Appalachian State College in Textiles/Marketing. In 1995, she became involved in interior design and launched her own design firm, Sharon Cass Interiors, in Huntington. Sharon is excited about the opportunity to expand on her activities and to pursue an active role on Family Service League's Board of Directors. Sharon and her husband Terrel reside in Huntington.

WAYNE GROSSÉ

Wayne is currently COO and a lead member of the strategic team at Bethpage Federal Credit Union. During his 25-year banking career, Wayne has been responsible for overseeing the management of the lending, business development, operations, marketing, business analysis, and information services departments. Wayne attended Oswego State University of New York, where he received a bachelor's degree in political science. He received a master's in business administration from Dowling College. He has served on the Huntington Chamber of Commerce board and currently sits on the Farmingdale Foundation Board. Wayne, his wife Laura, and their three children reside in Bayport.

DEBRA LUND

Debra leads Newsday's strategic research and product development effort as director of Strategy & Development. Prior to joining Newsday, Debra held several consumer focused research positions. She is a graduate of Queens College where she earned a master's degree in applied sociology in 1991. Debra is an advocate of substance abuse prevention and rehabilitation and is looking forward to serving as a board member of such a vibrant organization as FSL. She lives in Plainview with her husband and their two daughters.

FSL Receives $100,000 Grant from Unitarian Universalist Congregation at Shelter Rock

Family Service League strives to break the endless cycle of illness and homelessness by breaking down systemic barriers between homelessness and mental health services. The staffs of two FSL housing programs, the Linkage Center (TLC) and Self-Sufficiency, and the staffs of two FSL mental health programs, PROS (Personalized Recovery Oriented Services) and Shelter Case Management, collaborate to provide access, treatment, rehabilitation, housing, and aftercare for homeless individuals - many of whom suffer from severe and persistent mental illness.

FSL recently received a $100,000 grant from the Unitarian Universalist Congregation at Shelter Rock to conduct a ground-breaking, one-year pilot program that will serve 10 to 20 chronically homeless, mentally ill individuals and will demonstrate that integrated homelessness and mental health services can relieve the suffering and improve the lives of Long Island's most troubled and needy individuals.

Annual Golf Classic Raises Close to $200,000 to Support FSL's Programs and Services

FSL's 12th Annual Golf Classic, held on June 30, 2008, at Engineers Country Club in Roslyn Harbor, honored James J. Carpenter, senior executive vice president of New York Community Bancorp. Under Carpenter's leadership - and with the assistance of his colleagues and Committee Chairs Vince Giovinco and Donald Eversoll - the Golf Committee raised close to $200,000 to support Family Service League's programs and services. The Roslyn Savings Foundation was the major sponsor of this event.

Government Grants Support Family Service League's Work Island-wide

Support from a variety of government sources is helping Family Service League reach more Long Islanders in need. "The landscape of our Long Island communities is continuously evolving," stated FSL President and CEO Rick Van Dyke. "Family Service League is able to identify problems, develop resources, and respond with innovative programs because of the generous support of our funders - particularly the government sector."

FSL to Launch Teen Center Thanks to Capital Grant Secured by New York State Assemblyman Philip Ramos

Family Service League will launch a new Teen Center at the Iovino South Shore Family Center in Bay Shore in November thanks to a capital grant of $50,000 secured by New York State Assemblyman Philip Ramos. The Phil Ramos Teen Center - which will be open during the evenings and on Saturdays - will be equipped with computers, large screen televisions, movies, and other recreational activities. "Assemblyman Ramos identified a need in the community and was proactive in putting a plan of action into place," described Karen Boorshtein, FSL executive vice president and COO. "FSL is very pleased to partner with him to create a safe, fun place for the teens of the Bay Shore and Brentwood communities."

New York State Assemblyman Marc Alessi Reaches Out to Children in Need

New York State Assemblyman Marc Alessi secured a grant to support the work of FSL's Child and Family Clinic Plus Program. This special program is designed to help at-risk children and adolescents, ages five to 18, who are experiencing problems with their emotional well being. Educational assistance and counseling also are provided to the program participants. "FSL's work is critical in providing supportive resources to help Long Island's children and families through challenging times," described Assemblyman Alessi.

READING, WRITING, AND ARITHMETIC - VITAL EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES AND SERVICES

Family Service League has successfully collaborated with its generous corporate partners to provide critical educational resources and services to young and old alike as they strive to meet the challenges of a new school year and beyond. "Support from the business sector and individual donors is vital to the success of our programs – enabling Family Service League to meet the growing needs of the Long Island community," stated FSL President and CEO Rick Van Dyke.

Bethpage Federal Credit Union and National Grid Major Funders for FSL's Back to School Boutiques

For its eighth consecutive year, Family Service League hosted Back to School Boutiques at their family centers - enabling families in need to receive backpacks filled with supplies for their school-aged children to begin the school year. With major funds provided by grants from Bethpage Federal Credit Union and National Grid, school supplies were purchased at wholesale and distributed to qualifying children by appointment over a three-day period. Approximately 1,500 school children received backpacks this year.

Newsday Charities and King Kullen Grants

FSL was awarded a $65,000 grant from Newsday Charities, a fund of the McCormick Tribune Foundation. A portion of this grant was used for FSL's CAMP program, which enables children from low-income families to spend time in a summer camp where education, sports, and friendship help provide a respite from the challenges of daily living. King Kullen Grocery also provided a $7,500 grant to support FSL's CAMP Program.

Newsday's Charities Grant also is being used to support the Community Advocacy Information and Referral (CAIR) Center located at all of Family Service League's major family centers. The Grant helps meet urgent needs for food, heat, utilities, medicine, and housing and also provides for more long-term solutions through family counseling and case management.

CORPORATE PARTNERS HELP FSL OFFER SERVICES TO STUDENTS OF EVERY AGE

Universal Pre-K students enjoy one of six Young Explorer Computers that IBM donated to FSL.

IBM Grant

FSL is pleased to have been selected to implement IBM's KidSmart Early Learning Program in its Universal Pre-K Center curriculum at the Iovino South Shore Family Center in Bay Shore. As part of the program, IBM donated six Young Explorer Computers to the Center, thereby enabling more than 360 children to receive enriched teaching and learning through the use of information and communications technology (ICT).

JP Morgan Chase Grant

Family Service League received a $25,000 grant from JP Morgan Chase. This grant is being used to support the agency's after school and weekend activities programs at FSL's Iovino Family Center in Bay Shore.

Comp4Kids of NY Donation

Jonathan Zimmerman, a science teacher at Great Neck North Middle School, has been collecting discarded computers, printers, and electronics for years. Zimmerman, the founder of Comp4Kids of NY, painstakingly refurbishes this equipment and then donates it to individuals in need in the community. Comp4Kids recently donated 17 fully refurbished Pentium III and IV XP computers to Family Service League. These computers were distributed to individuals in FSL's YouthBuild Long Island and WorkPlus Programs.

FSL's 2008 Sammis Family House Tour Honors Memory of Quentin Byron Sammis

Family Service League's annual Sammis Family House Tour - held on May 21 - took visitors on a tour of five magnificent homes on Long Island's North Shore, including a beautiful manor home in Muttontown and the historic and grand home, Panfield, in Lloyd Harbor. In addition to the House Tour, guests enjoyed lunch at Centerport's Thatched Cottage and shopping at mini-boutiques set up in the Cottage. FSL was honored to dedicate the 2008 House Tour to the memory of Quentin Byron Sammis - a devoted family man, friend, philanthropist, volunteer, and prominent businessman.

Forty-one FSL Vocational Clients Looking to Re-enter Workforce Receive Free Makeovers from Cactus Salons

Cactus Salons provided 41 clients of Family Service League's vocational programs - WorkPlus, Flexible Employment, and Labor Ready - with an exciting event designed to boost self-esteem as individuals prepare for employment. Hosted at the Dix Hills Cactus Salon, the company donated the services of 58 employees - including hair stylists, colorists, manicurists, and make-up technicians - to provide free makeovers for 41 FSL clients. In addition to the personalized makeovers, each participant enjoyed a sumptuous buffet dinner; had the opportunity to select accessories, such as handbags, jewelry, belts, and scarves; and received a gift bag filled with hair and beauty products - all of which were donated by Cactus Salons.

"We are extremely grateful to Cactus Salons for their generous volunteer efforts," stated Karen Boorshtein, FSL executive vice president and COO. "Watching our clients' faces as the makeovers were taking place was like watching a child at Christmas. FSL cannot thank Cactus Salons enough for their efforts to help our clients be the best that they can be."

Karen Boorshtein and Lisa Jamison Receive Honors

FSL Executive Vice President and COO Karen Boorshtein and Family Services Division Director Lisa Jamison were the recipients of two Long Island honors.

Karen was recognized by Long Island Business News as one of the "Top 50 Most Influential Women in Business" for 2008. Launched in 2000, this award recognizes the important role women play in Long Island's economy. Karen was honored for the outstanding role she has played in helping Family Service League become a premier human services organization on Long Island.

Lisa Jamison was honored at the Tri Community and Youth Agency's 14th Annual Hall of Honor Celebration. Lisa was recognized as a "2008 Hall of Honor" recipient for her unselfish commitment to the youth in the Cold Spring Harbor, Huntington, and South Huntington school districts.

Lisa joined the staff of Family Service League in 1996; and in 2006, she became division director for FSL. As division director, Lisa administers and develops numerous programs – such as Project BEE, CAIR, UPK, Preschool, Debt Counseling, among many others – across Long Island.

How Can You Help?

Did you know that when you make a Tribute Gift, you really are making two gifts? The first is a gift to Family Service League to support our more than 50 programs that help children and families who are struggling on Long Island. Your Tribute Gift enables FSL to offer preschool programs to prepare four-year-olds for educational success; job training programs to prepare young adults for employment; mental health services for those struggling with mental illness or drug and alcohol addiction; and many other vital programs. Unfortunately, FSL's waiting lists for these services grow each year as more and more families face the severe economic challenges of our times.

The second gift you are making is a meaningful Tribute to a friend, relative, co-worker, or colleague. By making this gift In Memory Of someone who has passed away or In Honor Of a special occasion or accomplishment, you are giving the individual the gift of making life better for someone less fortunate. Please use the Tribute Fund envelope in this Newsletter to make your Tribute Gift today. Call Noreen Freded at 631.427.3700 ext. 282 or e-mail her at nfreded@fsl-li.org to receive additional envelopes. Thank you.
